

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS: JOSEPH GREENBERG AWARD 2017

The Association for Linguistic Typology's Joseph Greenberg Award recognizes and honors the best piece of typological research embodied in a doctoral dissertation or equivalent in 2015-2016. Theses are eligible if they were accepted by a university between 1 January 2015 and 31 December 2016 (i.e. passed or defended or accepted, and not just submitted). The award will consist of payment of travel, per diem expenses and registration fee to attend the ALT XII Conference, to be held in Canberra, Australia, 11-15 December, 2017, and the opportunity to present a synopsis or element of the prize-winning work as a plenary lecture at that meeting.

The Joseph Greenberg Award was named to remember Joseph Greenberg's (1915-2001) fundamental contributions to typology and the interest he showed in encouraging young researchers. Between 1998 and 2006, it was known as the "ALT Junior Award".

To be eligible, those submitting their dissertation must be members of the Association for Linguistic Typology (ALT) at the time of submission. They are asked to submit their manuscript by email in pdf format, with all non-standard fonts in Unicode, to the Chair of the Jury, Sonia Cristofaro [sonia.cristofaro@unipv.it], to arrive no later than 15 January, 2017. If this proves technically difficult, the candidate is asked to discuss the problem with the chair. A jury, consisting of about ten ALT members, will be appointed by ALT's President, appropriate to the work submitted.
